

TAP THAT

THE PIVOT

From vanity to sanity. A strategic evolution, not a rebrand.

Prepared by Jewell Projects for the founders of Tap That

The overall plan is sound. Focus and shape is the unlock.

1

The strategy is sound, the shape is not

Insightful, comprehensive, and Justin's mental model that everything feeds refills is spot on.

But it reads as AI theoretical: too much equivalence, too many directions, and its own best insights are buried.

3

The weakest unit is getting the support

Refills are at MVP, and only refills, and only beer.

Marketing's time goes to propping up the unit that does not work, at the cost of the ones that do. Watering the weeds, not the flowers.

5

Chasing two rabbits, catching neither

For all the right reasons, marketing explores an idea, quits, moves on.

Nothing gets the run it needs to prove itself either way.

2

Two business units cancelling each other out

Thought to be complementary, in reality pulling opposite ways. A great refill business takes traffic out of the Tap Room.

Which means more spend to replace it, at a high cost per customer.

4

The offer is good, but the stars cannot shine

We suspect a long tail of beer options is driving cost of goods.

And we think it is causing choice paralysis at the point of sale.

6

In danger of dying with a beautiful corpse

Running a brewery is hard. Hospitality is harder. Both on a skeleton staff is unreasonable.

Permission is needed to reshape the business.

THE CORE READ

TAP ROOM IS VANITY. REFILLS ARE SANITY.

96-113

Active refill customers, ordering repeatedly.
That is MVP status, reached without a push.

56%

of refill customers bought their tap system somewhere else. The refill proposition is already validated.

20%

of system buyers are said to have visited the Tap Room. That is correlation, not proven causation.

The Tap Room works as an event and function destination. It does not work as a walk-in, because the footfall is not there. The task now is to brutally edit the losers and invest in what is proven.

Get the core right, then go for more.

1

Tap Room: Pause and pivot

Pause walk-in trading. Go all in on destination demand.

PROOF Event and function nights are already profitable

- PR to tourism, event and wedding planners
- Own the tour circuit: Urban Legends booking tool, Pineapple Tours, Crafted award callout
- Ticketed events and collabs
- Party rental, with minimum-guarantee kegs covering the rental cost

2

Convert the owners already sold

Objections are already overcome for existing kegerator owners.

PROOF 56% bought their system elsewhere

- Harvey Norman gift-with-purchase and point-of-sale tie-up, plus buyer database
- Buy Kegland and corny-keg owner databases
- Official Benchy partnership and database
- Co-branded outdoor BBQ and system bundle

3

Remove all friction in refills

Every extra step in the refill process costs a sale.

PROOF 10% reorder monthly, 40% far later. One clock fails both

- Free delivery always works, recover margin in dollars, not percent
- Replace the blanket 90-day SMS with consumption-triggered reminders
- Lead on the simplicity: no CO2, pick up and go
- Simplify membership, refill-centric
- Get Justin off the bar and onto the road

4

Rationalise the range

Create hero products, cut the non-productive tail.

PROOF About 19 brew choices loses both curation and best-in-class

- Deeper product marketing on the brews that remain
- Introduce social proof cues, such as most popular
- Free the shelf space and the brewing time for the heroes

5

Ride the wellness wave

Also the way back to lapsed customers.

PROOF 40% of lapsed customers cite cutting back

- Low, non-alcoholic, low-carb and protein range
- Wellness influencer collabs, amplify or co-develop
- Reframe for the cutting-back cohort as a healthier alternative, not less beer

Once the core is running, extend it.

6

Full press on wholesale

Resourced, structured and measured. No more falling through the cracks.

PROOF One wholesale account is worth about ten households

- Hire a full-timer or an agent
- Set targets and KPIs
- Custom systems for sporting clubs, minimum-guarantee kegs per season
- Move rigs from footy to cricket for year-round occupancy

7

Design for her

Covered is not the same as catered for.

PROOF The passion for brews is real, the range does not reflect it

- Romance the RTD properly
- Build the hydration story through the wellness and light range
- Products she is proud to serve
- Systems designed to sit in eyesight at home

8

Hyper-personalise comms and LTV

This needs a process, not a message.

PROOF Buying cycle: about 60% within three months, 40% longer

- Track consumption to predict the next refill
- Re-engage lapsed customers by actual reason: cutting back versus forgot
- Trigger-based outreach, not calendar-based
- Personal details: anniversaries, footy finals

9

Make the kegerator worth writing about

Turn the system itself into desire.

PROOF 1,000 giveaway entries is proven demand

- User-generated content mechanic: tag Tap That, get a discount
- Own your keg personalisation, like a whisky bottle
- Explore short-term and occasion rental for parties

10

Package around the duopoly

Locked-in venues still have real pain points.

PROOF Contractual lock-in is not the same as satisfaction

- A packaged offer that works around existing contracts
- Find the judo move that uses their size against them: no lock-in, profit share, white labelling

EVENT EXAMPLES

The destination business, sold the way the venue already sells it.

WEDDINGS AT TAP THAT

A BEER WITH YOUR NAMES ON IT

Brew it together

Come in for a tasting, blend it your way, name it, put your own label on it. One session, one beer that is nobody else's.

Pour it on the day

We deliver it to your reception in 20L kegs or 500ml cans. Your beer, your names, on tap in front of everyone you invited.

EVERY GUEST GOES HOME WITH ONE.

Talk to us about a wedding brew
cheers@tapthatbrewery.com.au

Weddings

BUCKS & HENS AT TAP THAT

THE LAST ROUND
BEFORE THE BIG ONE

The room is yours

A private session across 27 taps. Beer, sours, seltzers and RTD spirits, so nobody in the group is stuck drinking something they don't like.

Blend your own

Guided flight tasting, then everyone has a go at building the brew. Winner gets their name on the label.

THEN WE KEGGED IT FOR THE WEDDING.

Book a bucks or hens session
cheers@tapthatbrewery.com.au

Bucks and hens

WORK FUNCTIONS AT TAP THAT

THE WORK DO,
DONE PROPERLY

Book the mezzanine or the lot

Christmas parties, end of financial year, team nights, client events. Drinks packages sorted, Ammazza pizza on the menu.

Or we bring the pub to you

Hire a Tap That keg system filled with whatever your team actually drinks, and run it at your own place.

A WORKING BREWERY BEATS A FUNCTION ROOM.

Ask us about venue hire
cheers@tapthatbrewery.com.au

Work functions

TOURS & TASTINGS AT TAP THAT

STAND IN THE
BREWHOUSE

Not a tasting room. The brewery.

The fermenters are right there. You taste what came out of them, standing next to them, with the head brewer telling you how it got there.

Paddle, flight or full tour

Tasting paddle from $18. Group tours by arrangement, and we work with the Gold Coast brewery tour operators.

CRAFTED BREWERS' CHOICE AWARD WINNER.

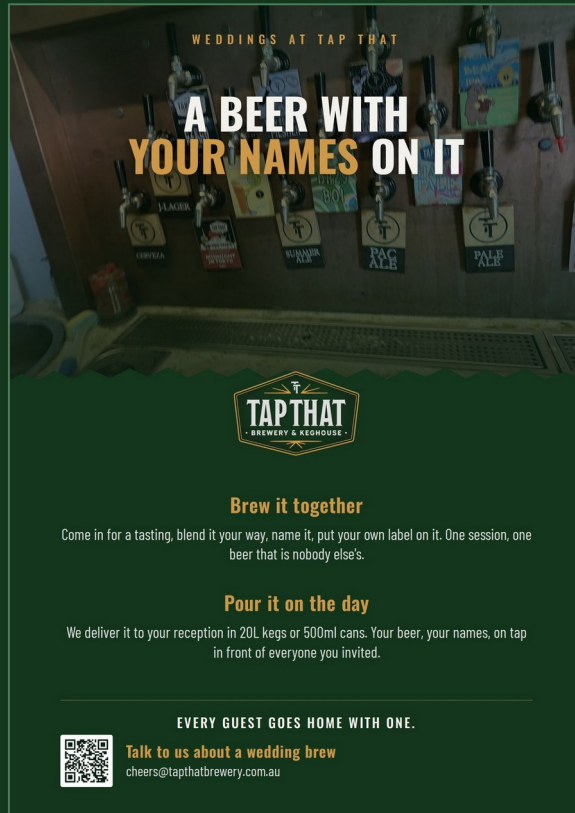

Book a tour or a tasting
cheers@tapthatbrewery.com.au

Tours and tastings

Format taken from Tap That's own in-venue flyer. Photography is the August site visit, not stock. Print-ready A4 at 200 dpi.

Turning hens and bucks days into wedding day volume.

The artwork, ready to send

1

The Tap Room event

Private hens or bucks session. Guided flight tasting across 27 taps with interactive ingredient blending.

2

Bespoke branding

Co-branded custom label, naming, and beverage style selection: beer, sour, seltzer or RTD spirit.

3

Wedding day reception

Bulk supply delivered in 20L kegs or custom cans for the main event.

4

Take-home flywheel

Every wedding guest goes home with a branded sample and a QR code.

High-margin function revenue

Captures premium venue hire and group tasting packages upfront.

Guaranteed bulk volume

Secures pre-sold beverage volume for the reception.

Organic customer acquisition

Converts guests into hardware and subscription leads.

PARTNERSHIP CONCEPTS

What a co-branded system could look like.

Trade and worksite

Four-wheel drive and touring

Motorcycle clubs

Mobile bar for events

Concept renders for discussion. No approach has been made to any brand shown, and none of these marks are licensed.

Two things to hold on to.

Who is the real enemy?

Overpriced pubs. Not the duopoly, not A&A, not the keg-delivery operators. Speak in unit economics everywhere, and do not get pulled into a keg price war you do not need to fight.

Handle the census with care

49 people, forced-choice answers. People do not always know, or say, why they buy. Status, wanting to be seen as successful, compensating for something else: real drivers, rarely spoken. Useful colour. Not a strategy map.

Small fixes, disproportionate impact.

- 1 Above the fold No hook, background film cut too fast to read, copy pollution, low-resolution static logo.
- 2 Missing proof The Crafted Brewers' Choice award, the fits-any-system callout and strong reviews are all buried below the fold.
- 3 Hierarchy Four business units treated equally. Prioritise the moments that matter: family, friends, the proud provider role.
- 4 Category Commercial brewer invites mainstream price and product comparisons. It needs an elevated category name of its own.
- 5 Channel language Wholesale should speak directly to restaurants and sporting clubs: cuisine matching, club-branded kegs, straight to the margin story.

WHERE JEWELL PROJECTS CAN HELP

What we can pick up from here.

FROM THE BRIEF

-  Website design optimisation
-  SEO and GEO best-practice implementation
-  PR outreach to tourism operators and experiential platforms
-  Influencer outreach
-  Partnerships outreach and project management: BBQ brands, system collabs
-  Urban Legends collaborative booking tool

ALSO WORTH ADDING

-  Trigger-based CRM and lifecycle build, which fixes the 90-day SMS problem
-  Membership programme redesign
-  Wholesale structure and KPI framework
-  Event flyer and campaign artwork, in the format shown